It was when you found out you could make mistakes that you knew you were onto something.

and I was alone in the dark a non-I in the all-pervading gloom with no grasp no leaning point everything stripped of everything and the sound was speechless and voiceless and I was naught and nothing without even a gibbet to hang onto without a single peg to hang onto and I no longer knew who or what I was and I was no more

I'm happy just because,

I've found that I am really

NO ONE.
